Simplified spelling isn't an issue with the small boy just yet, but it will be next week.

Massachusetts Democrats are not anxious to be candidates for governor this year in the face of District Attorney Morgan's assured candidacy. Ex-Gov. W.
L. Douglas is the latest one to decline to be a candidate for nomination.

If that hole in the ground at Castleton, which is supposed to have been made by a falling meteor, had not been discovered quite so soon, it might have been credited to some political candidate who may fall by the wayside next Tuesday.

The editor of the Burlington Free Press steps long enough from writing Editorial editorials to remark: "It will sound strange to spell it 'hole,' but a bit girl by any spelling will probably be as sweet." Why not have this investigated?

A candidate for office in Connecticut remarked to a reporter: "Don't say that my friends have urged me to accept the nomination. I have always had ambitions for a public career and will seek the nomination." What a refreshing change! He ought to win for his frankness of statement, if nothing else.

If such a unanimity of opinion exists among all the candidates for the Senate in this state as is indicated by the letters from those in Washington county printed in yesterday's Times, there ought to be no doubt about securing the legislation needed—and it is needed.
Vermont has been considerably bothered some of her sister states in this respect, not because of non-progressiveness, but because she is so largely a rural community. The growth of her manufacturing industries and the increase in population in many of the villages and towns impresses on her
the need of legislation along these lines, and it is to be hoped that a good part,
if not all, of the new laws indicated in the questions put by the central labor union may become laws at the coming session of the legislature.

September's First Science.

To discover the heart of an oyster the shell of flesh which oysters call the "mantle" must be removed. This is fatal to the oyster, of course but in the interest of science and for the benefit of the "mantle" it is occasionally done.
When the mantle has been removed the heart, shaped like a crescent or heart-shaped, is laid to the view. The oyster's heart is made up of two parts, just like that of a human being, one of which receives the blood from the gills and the other drives it out through the arteries. The heart is found in the immediate vicinity of the heart and stomach and is a queer shaped little organ, which is supposed to perform all the functions of a blood liver. Every oyster has a mouth, a heart, a liver, a stomach and other necessary internal organs, including a set ofunningly devised intestines. The mouth is at the small end of the oyster's body, near the hinge of the shell. It is oval in shape, and though not easily discerned by an untrained eye, it may be easily located by gently pushing a blunt hookin or similar instrument along the folds of the surface of the body at the place mentioned. Connected with the mouth is the canal which the oyster uses in conveying food to the stomach, from where it passes into the numerous little set of folded and twisted intestines referred to.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

The Evening Star.
"This mat is too young. Next week
Each evening as he labors
To try to make his little lawn
Look better than his neighbor."
—Poetry.

The Way It Looked.
Hewitt—Gruet is the whitest man I know.
Jewett—Your acquaintances must be trustees.—New York Press.

His Own Advice.
So much advice he gave away
That when he needed some one day
He found his store had given out.
—Washington Star.

Qualified.
Deader—Does your friend Wright
know anything about paintings?
Palmer—Of course not. He's only an art critic.—Detroit Tribune.

Nature Being Feminine.
Dame Nature's age grows day by day.
Though she may not reveal it,
For womanlike, she knows a way.
To cleverly conceal it.
—Philadelphia Press.

A Dangerous Woman.
"What did the pheasant say when he examined your bump?"
"He said that my wife had a very well developed amulette."
—Boston Transcript.

He Rival Near the Throne.
Brown—Why did your mother take the parrot out of the sitting room?
Little Johnnie—The swing circle met here this afternoon.

A Quirky.
John—There's a new girl over.
Now, don't you think it true,
Were she a dame of these times,
She'd peremptorily open up?
—Baltimore American.

One of Those Quick Changes.
"Did you notice how the bride said I will?"
"She'll be saying 'I won't' instead of a week."—Put-Me-Up.

Cupid's Masters.
Though Cupid gets the credit
For love and all we see,
There are many another greater,
And that's Cupid.
—Putt.

Two In One.
"Starting Latin, eh? You should take up Greek too."
"But Latin's Greek to me."—Philadelphian Ledger.

A Scary Spectacle.
Behind her skipping on the sand.
This vivacious summer girl,
Her hair in braids, and Her feet in out-of-cast.
—Washington Star.

A Still Country.
These mountaineers are very quiet while they are giving the alarm about the approach of the revenue officers.
"Sort of a still alarm, eh?"—Chicago
News.

THAT TROUBLESOME SEAL.

The Much Discussed Animal as It Looks to Its Paraway Home.
The killing of the Japanese seal poachers and the communications on the subject between Washington and Tokyo have brought the much discussed seal into the foreground again. This animal is getting used by this time to being made a subject of international inquiry or negotiation. Great efforts have been put forth by the American government to stop pelagic sealing—that is, indiscriminate slaughter from the open sea of the seal herds. It was found that this practice was rapidly exterminating the species.
